IN THE SPRINGTIME

The Young Folk's Fancy Lightly
Turns to Outdoor Sports.

THE ADVANTAGES

Of Common Sense Outdoor Association—
Where There Must Be a Chaperone and Where One Is Not Needed.

(Copyright, 1904, by Christine Terhune Her-

In the spring a young man's face lightly turns to thoughts of outdoor sports. So does that of the young woman. In fact, it is extremely probable that they have not waited until now to bestow consideration upon such matters, but have been planning for them while still the snow was blowing and the streams frozen.

Now, as the roads get in good order and the mud dries from the fields, the golf clubs are brought out, the wheels are overhauled and put in condition and all sorts of plans are laid for Saturday half-holidays and vacation times.

With the return of the possibility of this sort of thing arises the annual question as to how much liberty is to be allowed our young man and our young woman in their association with each other. Are they to go about alone unaccompanied, as they have done from time immemorial in the country and small towns, or are the rules of smart society in the big cities to be complied with? There are advocates of both sides of the matter and each has its pros and cons.

At the midst of any and all temptations. As putting aside either of these extremes—although I like to think that the latter is not an extreme, but just what one might look for from any young man or woman who is at all well brought up—there are a few general plans we try to follow in a few general plans. In the first place, then, before granting permission to your daughter to accept invitations to outdoor junketings from young men be pretty sure of your young man. He should not be picked up at random, so to speak. It is bad enough if the man who calls on a girl in her home is the chance acquaintance, with no endorsement from those who know or except from those who know or his name, but it is much worse if he is to be a girl's companion on a ride or even on the golf links—although the last is probably the least undesirable locality in which to be left alone with a comparatively stranger. Putting aside all these questions, there is always the possibility of a sort of sort of outdoor excursions and the young man who accepts a young man's invitations for one of these should be that he is the man on whom she would

There is a somewhat exaggerated idea of the conventions that exist in this respect even in large cities and among fashionable folk. A floor light beats upon the throne and those who are almost as well known as royalty and have their actions chronicled in all the papers have to submit from many simple folk to a doubtless court. Those who follow her after that, often in a struggle for social entrance, but who have not yet attained tot, often imagine themselves to be of no much importance that they must conform to certain rigid requirements. Thus, for instance, I heard not long ago of one of these seekers for society-column fame who severely criticised a mother for permitting her eighteen-year-old daughter to go to the opera, unaccompanied except by her thirty-year-old brother. "The mother should have gone along, or else sent an elderly woman friend," pronounced the censor. "There is no knowing to what remarks the young people laid themselves open by going unaccompanied."

To such a sensible woman replied: "The person who recognized them would understand the situation and it would not be worth while to worry about the judgment of those who did not know them."

We may afford, to lay aside the consideration of such standards as these and study rather what rule should be followed in the small town or the country neighborhood among young men and women who are in good so-being willing to depend in case of an accident.

Also, she should know the man enough—or her mother or father should know him well enough—to be sure that his character is such as to make him a desirable companion. It may not be of necessity a bad sort yet his bringing up, his associates may have been such that a girl's parents may feel it is decidedly inadvisable that their daughter should associate with him, even though he is himself in such a way as to win his social companionship. But if he is known to be a clean, honorable, well-to-do young fellow and if the girl is a right sort of self-respecting young man, there is no reason why they may not have certain outings together without laying themselves open to criticism. Of course, all these outtings must be chosen with judgment.

Suppose a girl and a man have infected with the returning fondness for bicycle riding. The new wits are enough to win even old boys and old girls to a desire to learn wheeling really means. Is there any reason why the young couple should not go out for a spin or two on a long ride? None in the world. If they want to take a compact lunch with them and eat it by the roadside, there after and read the papers, they may do it without fear of censure—provided, always provided that they are the sort of young man and woman I have described. I think it is the wise thing to be so free and so freely among people

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

gave charms to the wheel that never possessed before. It is a son in when it is necessary to decide that rule we shall lay down for our young people when they go bicycling among upon a time it might have seemed needless, but we are entering upon a different order of things.

Even the best bred boys and girls occasionally give way to the sultry selfishness afforded and make fools of themselves. This is the fault which cannot be done to this. And for those who are good for their talents to spend them out equipped with a sufficient store of good advice, often it is more thoughtlessness than makes young people ride along counting yaks' yelling like Comanches and disturbing the peace of quiet folk sometimes they seem to lay aside their manners when they put on their cycling tops. On this account it is all the more desirable to have a chapter now when there is a large party than when there are only a few on the expedition. A racket of any sort is contagious and where two or three persons would not think of waking the echoes with their shrieks of innocent frolic, a dozen or so would be pretty

LABORER MUST BE FREE.

If Shakespeare had Lived in New York in 1804 He Never Would Have Asked the Question, "What's in a Name?"

Special Correspondence of The Gazette.

New York, April 26—The state of Indiana has been put under martial law by its governor; this is the last act of a government to secure the obedience of its people and is only repeated when it has behind it the power to enforce its decree. A law, frequently violated without punishment, had better be taken from the code, for, if not, all law will cease to be respected. At Cripple Creek a band was formed which set the pyrrhic and all laws at defiance; armed to the teeth, they marched from mine to mine, where men were satisfied with their wages and the time they were employed; if the men re-

There are other conditions in which chaperone is advisable. One is when a young man is extended and the situation made late in the day. If the sister means to stop for a night anywhere, a chaperone is indispensable. One may be a jolly young married woman or a girl of the older set who is a sister of one of the younger members of the band. In any case she will lend dignity to the company. Even at a meal is to be taken at a hotel or in its well to have an older person along.

Once it would have been hard to find a woman of even comparatively good society to be called upon to chaperone a wedding party, but we have changed all that. The improvements in modern society are bringing things to such a pass that even there will be no old people. They will all of them be always young. Keeping in step with this advance is modern invention, making exercise not only easy, but a delight. The vision that the old men saw and the dreams that the young men dreamed in Bible times will be matched by the realities that will be achieved by the young, middle-aged and even elderly women who have the physical training that keeps them in order. Supplemented by the means that render outdoor excursions a joy.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, and I was continually becoming weaker and weaker, no appetite, growing weaker and weaker. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters. I started on them, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and now I am a new man. I know they will cure all the ailments that trouble you. No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at J. R. Irvine & Co's, Drug Store."

EPIGRAMS AND SENTIMENTS

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

CINCINNATI, April 25.—The following are epigrams and sentiments taken from a verbatim report of a sermon delivered at the Vine Street Congregational church by the pastor, Rev. Herbert S. Riglow. Mr. Riglow had chosen the text: "Be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind."

York in 1904 forever would have sacrificed that question, especially if the name happened to be Rothschild. That is the name which rules greatest influence throughout the world. Its old story, yet it only goes back about a hundred years, that an old Jewish banker in Frankfurt-on-the-Main carried on a business of dealing in the paper of other financial firms and made a very modest living. Napoleon, at that time, was trampling on the Rhine and leaving ruin and death wherever he went. His advancing armies ever he was the terror of the world.

Mr. Riglow trembled. The Lat

The hope of democracy is in teaching mankind the art of thinking. It is impossible to avoid eating and drinking and breathing the germs of disease. One may hope, however, to live righteously and resist them. So with the mind. It is visited by the evil as well as the good. To starve the evil and feed the good is the aim of the wise.

Just as in a neglected house there may be conditions that attract vermin and breed a pestilence, so in the mind long losses of light, the stain of sin, the stock of old ideas in different stages of decay in which are nurtured the germs of disease and death. To go down into the cellar of the mind and up into the garret, to drag out the mouldy and infected thoughts and scour the hidden corners and flood the darkness with the sunshine—what if we were to do this every spring?

The tenderest of men has expressed the value of a human soul in that parable of the living shepherd who leaves the ninety and nine that are safe in the fold to find the one that is lost. Who can see those human lives where poverty and misery dwell without thinking how rare in our civilization is that true Christian spirit which looks with pity upon even the vilest of our oppressed lifeless negroes upon the earth?

May we not say truly of our America what Wordsworth said of his England? "Her floors fettered slaves be none, Her flowers and soil Green underneath a weight of slavish toil."

Green underneath means the development of that power of imagination which enables a man to put himself in his brother's place. It means the progressive recognition of the rights of all to live and grow in body and in soul.

The man with narrow mind and low ambitions who is irritated at the mere mention of the wrongs of other men whose absorbing interest is in personal by a very ingenious method; when some came down he hid it either counted by his back, or a new made, his credit being good; there to be a day of settlement and left that day of wrath was not far off, begged his treasure and fled. "What is a name?" I don't know, do you? All are asking what is the new felt seat of war. There is as much interest felt in the war in the city of New York as in St. Petersburg or Tientsin. Each day's news seems to increase the savagery. Eight hundred thousand of the people of the Russian fleet have joined into carny in the twinkling of an eye; no destroying shell expends; no death-dealing messenger notified her of his danger; a murder snarling shell unseen beneath waves struck her, opening a fright hole in her side, and thus, one of noblest creations of man's mechanical skill "turned turtle" and sunk; it one of the most terrible maritime gain and pleasure—he is a vulture spirit, bent on carnage, and has not the moral purgation to realize his own ugliness.

The criminal is more to be pitied than his victim. No man ever died for a crime who was wholly responsible for it. Character is a resultant of many forces and no human instruments are delicate enough to measure human guilt.

The cords which bind us are spun out of our own brains. The politicians are as good as the people. We enjoy all the freedom we deserve. The world is a mirror in which is reflected the soul of the composite man. If there is war in the world, it is because there is hate in the heart. If there is witchcraft without, it is because there is greed within. Ignorance and selfishness are the prime-ministers of evil. Paradise is reserved for those who learn the lessons of wisdom and love.

A Thoughtful Man.

M. M. Austin, of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need: His wife had caught an unusual case of gonorrhea, and the liver troubles of a physician could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and she got relief at once and was finally cured by only six of them. J. R. Irvine & Co's Drug Store.

It is a loss to the whole world that the great Atsarskitch was one of the 800 who went down with the vessel. Let us no longer be so easily deceived by the solemn upon the face of the earth; day, it was our stauncher friend; it thus of our sorrow, which ended the life of the Russian sailor, was a blessing from our flag. children of the lives of Mrs. Enos Walters and Jacob Smith.

Russan Walters, wife of Enos Walters, died at her home near Imber on April 1, aged 51 years, seven months and 10 days. Mrs. Walters was twice married and is the mother of eight children. She leaves to mourn their loss an aged husband and six children, grandchildren and 23 great grandchildren. Her first husband was David (Tzely, who died many years ago, the union three children were born, namely, Mary E. wife of Samuel Gratzel, Fredricka Joseph; Ann I., wife of David Blackburn, of Johnstown, and Henry, deceased. To her second husband five children were born—Franklin, deceased; Mrs. Kate James, Ravensburg; Ida, wife of G. H. Imber, Ridgely, Md.; D. Albert, of Altoons; Rebecca, wife of David Kaufmann, of Imber. She was a faithful and devout member of the church for 30 years—

A Lutheran for about 25 years, and professed to that time she belonged to the Methodist church. She was always at church on Sunday school and church services. Her failing health would not permit her to be there, and her smiling and pleasant words will be great comfort. She was a true and faithful wife and kind and loving mother and leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss. She was buried at Imber on April 29 at 10 a. m. Her pastor, Rev. Diehl, assisted by R. V. Nace, officiating.

Our nearest mother, too, has just left us. For years our loss we deeply felt. In the night, and in the small of the back, we die due all our sorrows here. But, in time, we'll strive to meet these things. When life's tolls and days are over, we'll be glad to go to greet thee. Where no farewell tears are shed.

JACOB SMITH.

Jacob Smith, an aged and respected

Winn of Woodbury, was called from to him to his reward on April 17. In the death of Mr. Smith one of the old endemics is removed, his having been one of the old militias who used to gather for musters before the late war was. He also was one of the convict wagoners, having often driven his father's six-horse team to Indiana in the days before steam road-cars built. Mr. Smith was one of the youngest class of people with talent, older times when the thrasher, carpenter, reaper, mow man and all modern conferences were yet unborn of. He could tell his interesting experiences in an entertaining manner, as his memory was very keen, making it a pleasure to listen to him. He was a farmer all his life until some 15 years ago, when, his wife having died, he made sale and has since lived retired, saving for the past several years. He is now home with G. B. Imier, Esq., of Montgomery borough, at which place he has resided for some time (at least several months) that he would have till April of this spring, as he was a few weeks ago in good health. THE

NEW YORK WORLD

THIRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read wherever the English language is spoken

the Thrice-a-Week Union was a brilliant success in the beginning and has been steadily growing ever since. Time is the test of all things, and it has set its seal of approval on the Thrice-a-Week Union, which is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and wherever we are people who can read our mother tongue.

This paper for the coming winter and the spring of 1903, will make its news service, if it is not its educational value, all important. Importance no matter where it happens, are reported accurately and promptly.

The subscriber, for only one dollar a year, gets three papers every week and are news and general reading than most daily dailies can furnish at five or six

The Thrice-A-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is allowed to affect the news columns, and Democrats and Republicans alike can find in this paper truthful accounts of all great political campaigns.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-A-Week World publishes the best serial fiction, corroborate market reports and other features of interest.

The Thrice-A-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1 per year and this includes the Thrice-A-Week World and the United States newspaper and THE GAZETTE together one year for $2.50.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.
